How to Disinfect Surfaces More Efficiently

by Laurence Bohan

Dental surfaces should be cleaned and disinfected between treating patients and at the beginning and end of each day. When following this protocol, it's easy to find yourself getting through wipes at a rapid rate.

This situation is made worse by wipes that are designed or packaged in such a way where you cannot avoid pulling out multiple wipes at a time when you only need the one.

To help eradicate this problem, UltraClean Wipes from Cybertech are bigger, thicker and therefore easier to pull out one at a time. Over the course of a year this can lead to significant savings and less waste.

Why wipes over liquid?

Most dentists now choose disinfectant wipes over liquid thanks to convenience and the time it saves.

Multipurpose pre-saturated wipes allow cleaning and disinfecting to be done in one go rather than the two-stage process that a liquid requires.

Other advantages of using pre-saturated wipes include:

- They contain the optimum amount of disinfectant to ensure efficacy.
- They are easily disposable.
- They require less storage.

Can UltraClean wipes be used on all surfaces?

Yes. Because UltraClean wipes are alcohol-free, they can effectively be used on all surfaces.

This is convenient as some materials in the practice can be damaged when cleaned with alcohol.

Surface disinfection with alcohol wipes comes with the following risks:

- Staining and rusting metal and stainless steel (stands, equipment)
- Cracking, hardening and discolouring leather and vinyl (dental chairs)
- Loss of performance and clarity of glass (screens, lenses, lamps)
- Irritation to skin causing itching, redness, drying and cracking.

Do alcohol-free wipes have any other advantages?

Another potential advantage of alcohol-free wipes is the longer protection time they offer. The sanitising effect of alcohol-based wipes diminishes once the alcohol has evaporated, whereas many alcohol-free wipes can continue to provide protection well after the solution has dried.

Good quality alcohol free wipes will also contain a near identical spectrum of activity to that of alcohol-based wipes. This outlines the different viruses and bacteria the wipe can kill or inactivate. UltraClean wipes are proven to kill a wide range of bacteria, viruses, fungi and yeast.

It is important that any brand of wipe outlines the exact European EN Standards related to spectrum of activity it has been tested to. UltraClean wipes do just this.

How long do UltraClean wipes take to work?

Traditionally alcohol-free wipes have had a reputation for having longer contact times than alcohol-based wipes.

While this is true of some wipes on the market, this is not the case with UltraClean Wipes that provide action in as little as 1 minute against many viruses.

Protecting your purchase

As a Kent Express own brand product, UltraClean wipes come with a free no-quibble money-back guarantee as standard.

This means you can test the wipes for yourselves safe in the knowledge that you can return them if you're at all unsatisfied for any reason.

3 Keys to Boosting Your Q4 Tooth Whitening Sales

by Laurence Bohan

With Christmas and the party season just around the corner, many people will want to look their best for the big occasions coming up.

This can provide your practice with a great opportunity to show off your tooth whitening treatments and promote brighter smiles.

Here are our 3 keys to providing an attractive and successful whitening offering that can increase your practice's revenue.

Price

With many teeth whitening products now available on the high street at a low price, it is important that your treatment fees do not scare away potential patients.

Aim to set your fees at a price that is profitable for your practice, but affordable for patients. The cost of private tooth whitening in the UK ranges from anywhere between £300 and £1000.

Keeping fees sensible can go a long way to convincing a customer to whiten professionally instead of opting for a quick fix from the local pharmacy.

To keep your own fees down, it is important to shop around for whitening products that offer the best value.

Expertise

No matter how reasonable your fees might be, price is guaranteed to be a sticking point for many patients.

One way to get around this and steer patients away from cheaper high street products and potentially dangerous online kits is through education.

All members of the dental team should be adept in explaining to customers the differences in effectiveness between your treatment and over the counter or DIY options.

To help generate enthusiasm among the team, consider designating a tooth whitening champion, and perhaps incentivising them for selling discretionary treatments.

For interested but unsure patients, being able to provide them with a leaflet or flyer with the relevant information can let them buy into the idea in their own time.

Big White Smile, our own brand whitening gel, comes with free patient leaflets and posters with every purchase.

Convenience

Many patients want to be able to whiten their teeth from home with fast results, so it is important you can accommodate this.

Premium gels like Big White Smile have a selection of different formulas that work at varying rates to add convenience to a patient's tooth whitening journey.

The ability to provide assurance of quick visible results is an essential part of marketing your whitening treatment and justifying the extra cost of private treatment to the patient.

It's also important to consider patient tolerance for wearing whitening trays, and whether an overnight treatment might be more suitable than a shorter daytime treatment. The patient's lifestyle must be considered here.

For an idea of how long whitening kits take to work, here is an example of patient usage requirements with Big White Smile.

- Big White Smile 10% CP - for 8-10 hours (or overnight)
- Big White Smile 16% CP - for 4-6 hours
- Big White Smile 6% HP - for 1-1.5 hours

“ Premium gels like Big White Smile have a selection of different formulas that work at varying rates. ”

- R.T.R.+ 40/60 is an ideal choice if a longer resorption pace is preferred, for an even more stable new bone formation.
- R.T.R.+ 80/20 is recommended if the requirement is a socket filling with a fast new bone formation to prevent future bone weakness.
- Biphasic formulations allow resorption at the right pace which leads to the creation of a new stable and qualitative bone.
- Global porosity of 70%: interconnected network of macropores and micropores enables the colonisation of bone cells and biological fluid uniformly within the matrix.

R.T.R+ Membrane

- Two-layer synthetic membrane designed for guided tissue and bone regeneration.
- Compatible with RTR+ material and any other bone graft material.
- Fully resorbable meaning there is no need for repeated surgery.
- The membrane resorption time of 4 to 6 months provides optimal conditions for bone regeneration.
- Fully synthetic, which eliminates any biological risk associated with products of animal origin and ensures the universality of the material, making the product suitable for use on every patient.
- Two-layer structure ensures full impermeability and a strong barrier effect for 4 weeks.
- Compact layer protects against mucosal ingrowth into the defect area; porous layer provides support for bone cells during growth and promotes osseointegration.
